

FEIG ELECTRONIC continues to grow

55 years ago, Wolfgang Feig, company founder and still one of three managing directors of FEIG ELECTRONIC, started his business in Weilburg, Germany. More than 400 employees are now working on future-oriented high-tech solutions "Made in Germany".

The entire team generated sales of around 65 million euros last year. This means that FEIG ELECTRONIC is not only one of the largest employers in the district, but is also one of the economically strongest companies in the whole region.

In order to keep pace with the steady growth of the company, FEIG ELECTRONIC recently opened a new 4,200 square meter building complex, the FEIG SQUARE. This investment in Weilburg is a commitment to the location and symbolizes the company's close ties to the city and the entire region. At the same time, the new building is also an expression of the rapid growth in staff. Because FEIG ELECTRONIC takes its social responsibility as a company in the region seriously.

Whether training or dual studies - the medium-sized company has successfully combined theory and practice for decades, thereby training the “specialists for tomorrow”. In addition to the Limburg-Weilburg district, the catchment area for employees is now also in the neighboring regions of Westerwald, Hochtaunus and Wetzlar-Giessen. This shows FEIG ELECTRONIC as an attractive employer with a radiance beyond its home region.
