

Training Champions 2022

Since well-trained specialists are difficult to find on the labor market, FEIG ELECTRONIC has been involved as a training company for many years. Since then, numerous talents, especially from the local region, have been trained and often taken on as employees. In 2022, two training champions emerged from the FEIG trainees!

Jannik Halm and Adrian Huckwitz are these two training champions. Both completed their two-year training as industrial electricians for devices and systems this year with the top mark of “very good” and therefore received the “Training Champion 2022” award from the Limburg Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

However, neither of them wanted to rest on their laurels: Both Mr. Halm and Mr. Huckwitz immediately decided to continue their training as electronics technicians for devices and systems at FEIG, which will last another 1.5 years.

We are very pleased that both employees completed the previous training with the best possible result and chose FEIG ELECTRONIC again to start the next training level as an electronics technician for devices and systems.

A great confirmation that the training conditions at FEIG can both lead to top performance and provide an incentive to work in the company for a longer period of time.
